Today's Program:

Home health care services, Joel Babcock, CHI Health at Home

Rotarian of the Year: Brad Fong

Rotarian Brad Fong has been honored as the 2023-2024 Rotarian of the Year, the club's top recognition. Brad first joined the Dickinson Rotary Club in 1985, giving him more than 39 years of continuous membership. He served as Club president in 1997-1998 while actively employed leading his business. Upon his retirement, Brad took on the role of Club treasurer and has served for the past five years, keeping the club's finances in order.

"Brad exemplifies Rotary's 4-Way Test in his professional, Rotary and personal life," said secretary Kari Shea. "He truly and deeply cares for those around him, including his community, his family and members of the Rotary Club."

Last week:

Connect Medical's expansion

It's been 10 years since Connect Medical incorporated and it has now expanded to two providers, two nurses and admin staff. The new tag line is "Connect with Your Health" and Dr. Thomas Arnold and FNP Rachael Marshall detailed the expansion of services as it has grown into a medical clinic focusing on sexual health, with a care-based philosophy.

Connect Medical was represented by FNP-C Rachael Marshall, director and Rotarian Tara Zettle and Dr. Thomas Arnold.

This week's program:

Home Health, Hospice Improves quality of life

Whether recovering from an illness or injury, or living with a chronic illness, services such as home health, palliative care and hospice can help. This week, Joel Babcock from CHI Health at Home will talk about these services.
